MERCURY SOARS TO 96 DEGREES IN CIRCLEVILLE

Columbus Man Overcome By Sun When Hitch Hiking To Portsmouth

MANY RECORDS DISCLOSED

Chicago, Detroit And Other Cities Stricken; West Has Torrid Wave

Lower temperatures ruled over Central Ohio and most of the Midwest, Friday, after a scorching sun and hot winds shot the mercury to near-record heights Thursday in many districts and caused six deaths from heat prostrations throughout the nation.

Circleville reported its first prostration of the summer, John Pennell, 21, E. First avenue, Columbus, being taken to Berger hospital Thursday afternoon when he was overcome when hitch hiking. Pennell told hospital attendants that he was on his way to Portsmouth. He was discharged after treatment and continued on his way.

The temperature in Circleville reached 96 degrees, Thursday, nine degrees below the high for the summer, but extreme humidity made the heat much more intense. Seventy was as low as the mercury fell during the night. A little rain that fell in some parts of the city and missed other parts brought a little relief about 10 p. m.

Many Cities Torrid
Chicago's 97-degree temperature was the city's highest in two years and the hottest July 13 on record. In Detroit the high of 96 was also high for the season, as was the 94 degrees registered in Milwaukee.

In several smaller Midwest towns and cities the temperature soared just over 100 degrees, but even higher temperatures were the rule farther west. In Yuma, Ariz., it was 119 degrees; in Phoenix, 114; Concordia, Kansas, suffered in 110-degree heat, and in Kansas City the top was 102.

With weather conditions picking, wheat threshing in Pickaway county will be completed by the middle of next week. No rains heavy enough to prevent threshing have been reported in the county in the last few days. Shocked wheat is in fairly good condition for threshing, farm observers reported. Mill operators said the heaviest moisture is in combined wheat.

W. P. A. Heads Confer on Crisis

Charles E. Miner and Col. F. C. Harrington

WITH nationwide protest against the new 130-hour law facing them, State and federal officials of the Works Progress Administration met in Chicago. Photo shows two of the conferees, Charles E. Miner, left, W.P.A. administrator in Illinois, and Col. F. C. Harrington, national W.P.A. administrator, who came from Washington for the conference. Meanwhile, in Washington leaders of the American Federation of Labor unions met on an appeal to congress and President Roosevelt that prevailing wage rates be restored to W.P.A. workers.

Green Seeking Peaceful Solution Of National Relief Problem

WASHINGTON, July 14 — American Federation of Labor leaders, forewarned there should be no strikes against the government, go to the White House today to seek peaceful solution of work stoppage of W. P. A. workers, who are protesting against wage and hour provisions of the new relief act.

President William Green and high-ranking officials of the federation meet with President Roosevelt to discuss the present W.P.A. crisis, which occurred when thousands of relief workers demanded the prevailing rate of wage instead of the new security wage system.

As thousands of W. P. A. workers were being dismissed for remaining idle five or more days in the protest work stoppages, Attorney General Frank Murphy declared there should be no strikes of any kind against the federal government.

"Although the striking men are not criminals, out of the strike may come a criminal situation," Murphy stated. "The protests of the strikers are viewed with respect and sympathy, but we want to guide the situation within the law and in the public interest."

At the same time, Murphy revealed that "racketeering" evidence has come to the attention of the justice department. He said the department has been requested to investigate reports of intimidation of non-striking W. P. A. workers in East St. Louis, Ill.

"In some instances there is evidence of racketeering which is different from a sincere protest which is understandable," he stated. "Such cases the government ought to strike at."

He said "racketeering" evidence in W. P. A. strikes has been developed in Minneapolis, and other parts of the nation.

Strikers Interfering With Fisher Body Workers In Cleveland

SITUATION QUIET AGAIN

No Clubs Used By Officers In Breaking Up Solid Wall Of C. I. O. Men

CLEVELAND, July 14—Mounted police today charged a picket line at the Cleveland Fisher body plant of General Motors when the strikers, members of the C. I. O.-United Automobile Workers, blocked the path of employees seeking to enter the plant.

One man was arrested when he attempted to slug the driver of a car entering the plant gates, but was released on a waiver.

A car window was shattered by a stone and the driver was reported to have suffered minor cuts. A. E. Stevenson, secretary of the Cleveland Industrial Council, C. I. O. body, charged he was knocked down by a police horse and suffered wrist lacerations.

The charge of mounted police broke up the solidly-packed line of more than 100 pickets. The officers did not use their clubs, witnesses said, and the situation quieted down.

Two workers reported they were slugged as they entered the plant Wednesday, and pickets yesterday delayed departure of a freight train until they were assured a sealed car of the train contained no 1939 parts.

Homer Martin, head of the A. F. of L. branch of the union, remained in the city to address a general meeting of Fisher Body workers tonight. Only a handful appeared when he first was scheduled to speak late yesterday.

HUGHES TRIES AIRPLANE, MAY CIRCLE EARTH AGAIN

LOS ANGELES, July 14 — After a fast flight of five hours and 21 minutes from Portland, Ore., Howard Hughes, millionaire sportsman and aviator, said today he was "very pleased" with the performance of a Boeing stratoliner in which he may attempt a non-stop flight around the world.

Hughes said he did not fly more than 12,000 feet high for the major part of the trip and therefore did not have to use the plane's oxygen equipment.

He was reticent to speak of his purported plans to girdle the globe, declaring: "I have nothing definite in mind except to test the oxygen and navigation equipment and a new ballistic compass."

But, said Judge O'Connell: "This court will not sanction the 'easy out'—the easy emancipation that smirks at decency. Our courts must employ an effective resistance against the marriage speedsters."

J. WYLIE FETHERLIN HIRED AS GREENFIELD TEACHER

J. Wylie Fetherlin, of Greenfield, former Circleville high school teacher, has been employed by the Greenfield board of education as teacher of all speech classes and freshman and sophomore English. He will have charge of dramatic activities in addition to his other work.

Mr. Fetherlin taught in Circleville for eight years. He is a graduate of McClain high school in 1919 and holds a bachelor of science in education degree from Ohio Northern university, Ada.

Newspapermen Jailed Under Military Charges As Paris Reveals Intrigue; Envoy's Friend Ousted

PARIS, July 14—Two more French newspaper employees, bringing the total to four, were arrested today under military charges of acting as Nazi propaganda agents, the newspaper L'Humanite asserted today.

Under the headline "Traitors to France," L'Humanite, Communist organ, said the journalists were employees of rightist papers.

The government, meanwhile, refused to give out any details regarding the detention of M. Aubin, news service head of Le Temps, and M. Poirier, advertising man on Le Figaro, who were arrested yesterday.

The two men are being held in Cerche Midi prison, under orders of military, not civil, authorities. Both newspapers issued statements saying the employees involved had no connection with the publications' editorial policy. Le Temps, conservative and staid, generally reflects the views of the government, and Le Figaro, a rightist organ, is highly regarded in France.

In spite of the government's silence, observers noted that Aubin and Poirier were jailed soon after Otto Abetz, friend of German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop and an alleged Nazi agent, was expelled from France.

The speech of Premier Edouard Daladier in dismissing parliament June 27 also was recalled. "It has become known to us that attempts are being made to involve France in a network of trickery, intrigue, espionage, and perhaps even worse," Daladier said.

Abetz was credited with creating a "defeatist" attitude in France, which laid the groundwork for the Munich agreement last September under which Germany gained the Sudetenland from Czechoslovakia.

Squalus Lunges Above Ocean, But Sinks Again

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., July 14—Disheartened but undaunted, the navy today went stolidly about the task of making preparations for a second attempt to raise the sunken submarine Squalus, carrying 26 dead.

The first attempt ended in failure as seven weeks of salvage preparations were undone by a sudden lunge to the surface of the air-filled bow of the Squalus, a brief poke of the nose 20 feet above churning foam like a ghost risen for a glance at reality, and then a dive back into a watery grave.

Pontoons were wrecked, giant chains were snapped like string and salvage preparations were back practically where they started.

Rear Admiral Cyrus W. Cole, commandant of the Portsmouth navy yard, in charge of the salvage operations, was detected. (Continued on Page Four)

DOVER, Del., July 14—There will be no more boy friends in the life of Isabella Donovan, 18, a hosiery mill worker acquitted of killing her sweetheart, Vaughn Webb, 19, a C.C.C. worker, as they sat in his car parked in "lovers' lane." "I loved Vaughn too much to want any other boy friends," said the girl today. "I still have his memory."

The state charged she shot and killed Webb but Isabella maintained he killed himself because she refused him forgiveness after a quarrel.

PRESIDENT 'ACTS TO SAFEGUARD PACIFIC LANDS

WASHINGTON, July 14 — The army and navy, under the spur of a proclamation by President Roosevelt, today concentrated attention on the forging of an impregnable aerial and submarine defense screen far out into the Pacific and Atlantic oceans to safeguard the Western Hemisphere against aggression either from the Orient or Europe.

The chief executive cleared the way for immediate start on five vitally important air and naval bases in the Far Pacific and Alaska by suspending application of the eight-hour work day law under a proclamation of "national emergency."

"It is in the interest of national defense," the President declared in his executive order, "that the work be completed at the earliest possible date."

International observers regarded the action as of unusual significance in view of the aggressive steps taken by Japan in the last few weeks against rights of Western powers in China by blockading Amoy, Tientsin, Poochow and other China ports.

The combined air and submarine bases on which construction was ordered to proceed at full speed will be located on the Pacific islands of Palmyra, Johnston and Midway and at Kodiak and Sitka, Alaska. They will form an "advance defense" screen against the approach of a hostile fleet from the Orient, for the North American continent.

Gates Withstand Attempts By Zealots To Enter 40 Endangered

TOKYO, July 14 — In an unprecedented demonstration of Japanese hatred for England, thousands of rioting Japanese attempted vainly to storm the British embassy in Tokyo today.

At the same time, and in a different part of the city, 100,000 staged a noisy mass meeting at which a resolution calling for "overthrow of the British Empire" in China was adopted by acclamation.

British observers unofficially charged that the embassy demonstration had been "supported" if not inspired by the Japanese government. For two hours, a howling mob hurled stones at the building and tried to smash its gates to reach the embassy's forty occupants.

When hundreds of mounted police finally broke up the demonstration, the rioters marched in formation to the German embassy, which they enthusiastically cheered.

Police leniency, which enabled a truck-load of official Tokyo prefectural and city assemblymen to halt at the gates of the British embassy to pose for a group photograph, was responsible for the disorders.

The assemblymen were immediately surrounded by thousands of shouting and jostling demonstrators. Singing martial songs, they commandeered street cars and buses from which leaders shouted directions through megaphones.

Iron Gates Bent
A cordon of police six deep struggled to hold the crowd back from the iron gates which bent at the mob's impact.

A monstrous papier-mache dove, decked out with a funeral wreath, was carried to the gate and placarded with a sign labelled "Britain's Dead." Other banners attacked Britain's entire Far Eastern policy, particularly the attitude taken with regard to blockaded Tientsin.

Thirty thousand demonstrators first marched past the embassy in more or less orderly fashion, but a short while later a few thousand zealots returned and made a deliberate attempt to penetrate the gates.

All available police were called up as stones were hurled into the embassy compound and rioters astride motorcycles rode full tilt into the gates in an effort to break them down. Several (Continued on Page Four)

Factory Sewage Rates Decided

Figures Decided On At Conference Are To Be Temporary; 40 Works Executives Confer

An ordinance establishing a schedule of rates for treatment of industrial wastes in the city's disposal plant, for a four-month experimental period beginning Aug. 1, will be presented at the session of council, July 19.

The schedule of rates for this ordinance resulted from a conference of councilmen, other city officials and representatives of industrial firms conducted Thursday in the council chamber. The experimental schedule meets the approval of the industrial plant representatives.

Carl C. Leist, solicitor, who arranged the meeting and will prepare the ordinance, said the estimated cost for treatment of industrial wastes for the four-month period is approximately $4,200, exclusive of chemical costs. It was explained that it was difficult to estimate costs as high or low water conditions in the Scioto river alter treatment operations.

Under the suggested schedule the Container Corporation of America will pay $305 a month plus the cost of chemicals necessary for the treatment of wastes. Canning plants will pay two tenths of a cent per case of canned goods. The Pickaway Dairy will pay $3.15 a month plus costs of chemicals necessary for treatment. Other industrial plants will come under the schedule established by council for treatments of wastes from residences and business establishments.

AT THE GRAND

To fall flat on your face, get up, grab one foot in both hands and hop around on the other all in perfect time to music is a good trick, but Dick Powell mastered it.

He further proved himself a super-man when 103 pounds, of head-headed femininity launched herself from the floor to throw her arms around his neck and lock her shapely extremities around his waist without causing him to lose step.

It happened during the hilarious jitterbug sequence for Dick's new Warner Bros. comedy-romance, "Naughty but Nice," which opens next Sunday at the Grand Theatre with Ann Sheridan, Gale Page, Zasu Pitts, Allen Jenkins, Ronald Reagan and Maxie Rosenbloom in their featured roles.

Dick, in this tight club sequence, is the victim of another's error and his own innocence. He had a sub-normal sense of taste and so he has imbibed too many "Hurricanes," a powerful rum drink, thinking they are lemonades.

Allen Jenkins gives him the hotfoot, which takes effect just as Dick burns his finger lighting a cigaret for Ann Sheridan. Dick howls with pain and finds himself on the dance floor hopping around and holding his foot. There is a jitterbug contest going on and a red-headed girl whose partner has been disqualified takes Dick as a partner. And Dick unwittingly wins the contest.

Something new in Hollywood is Yakima Canutt, stunt man who's important enough to sit in on executive story conferences.

Canutt was supervisor of stunt thrills in battle scenes for Republic's "Man of Conquest," life story of Sam Houston, which stars Richard Dix and starts Sunday at the Cliftona theatre.

When the plot was developed, Canutt countermanded or passed on the sequences in which the thrills occurred. If he thought his corps of stunters could do better than what the story outlined, he had the story altered to include the better thrills.

As Charlie McCarthy rushes toward Hollywood after his encounter with rough Tony Galento in New York, his thoughts are centered on attractive Andrea Leeds who'll guest with Charles Irwin Sunday, July 16. Charlie has definitely had a weakness for Miss Leeds since she acted opposite him in his first full-length movie, "The Goldwyn Follies."

RADIO NEWS IN BRIEF

An innovation in sound effects will occur on Ezra Stone's "Aldrich Family" program July 23 when Stone will actually paddle a bicycle when the script calls for him to practice on the wheel in order to get in shape for a bicycle contest.

NBC has purchased the exclusive rights to the remainder of the season of concerts at Robin Hood Dell, Philadelphia. Andre Kostelanetz recently broke the attendance record there with his wife, Lilly Pons, as soloist.

James J. Walker, former mayor of New York, who has been doing a local radio program in Manhattan, may do a number of network spots now that the local series has faded for the summer. He was heard this week via NBC on the "It's Up to You" program.

Jerry Colonna, comedian on the Bop Hop show, in New York for a personal appearance at the Paramount theatre starting July 19, will do a guest shot on George Jessel's Celebrity Program July 26. Colonna appears at the Paramount with Bob Hope.

Cobina Wright, Sr., is dicker-ing for a Fall show for herself and her daughter, Cobina, Jr. Mrs. Wright has declined all other radio offers, waiting for word on whether she and Cobina, Jr. will have their own show.

Zeke Bonura, first baseman of the New York Giants, whose hitting has caused him to be one of the most discussed ball players in the major leagues this season, will be interviewed on George Jessel's Celebrity Program over the NBC-Red network Wednesday, July 19 at 8:30 p. m. Also to be heard are Patsy Kelly, film comedienne and Frank "Bring 'Em Back Alive" Buck. Music is under the baton of Peter Van Steeden with vocals by the Stardusters.

PERVERT HANGS FOR MURDER OF EASTERN YOUTH

CONCORD, N. H., July 14—

Fulfilling his promise to the prison priest not to give way to emotion, Howard Long, 35, went to his doom early today on the gallows at New Hampshire state prison with head erect and lips tightly pressed against outcry.

New Hampshire's first hanging in 21 years was accomplished precisely on schedule as Long plunged to his death for the killing of 10-year-old Mark Neville

Jensen, the culmination of a long series of sex crimes.

The trap was sprung at 1:20 a. m. in the pitch darkness of the steward's office as the one glaring light in the room was doused for two seconds. Seven minutes later Long was pronounced dead by Dr. Chauncey Adams, prison physician.

The trap, situated in the center of the office room in a small brick building, was sprung by one of three plungers operated by Sheriff Frederick A. Elliott and his two assistants. This arrangement gave each of the three men the comforting thought that his was not the button which sent Long to his death.

An early locomotive had two legs at the front. When the engine was operated the legs pushed backward to supply power to drive the engine, giving the effect of the engine walking.

BUILDING SPURT NOTED IN FIRST HALF OF YEAR

Federal Housing Official Says Construction Up By High Percentage

762 APPLICATIONS FILED

County Listed In District Showing Splendid Gain During 1939

COLUMBUS, July 14—A sharp spurt in construction during the first six months of 1939 has stimulated business generally in 43 Ohio counties, A. L. Guckert, Federal Housing Authority director for the Columbus district, reported today.

Referring to the oft proven statement that when building construction increased, business itself leaps ahead accordingly, Guckert reported a 223 percent increase in loan applications over 1938 and a 244 percent increase in value of loans.

"The increased activity in new home construction amounts to a small boom," Guckert said. "The building spurt in general has stimulated business in the 43 counties in our jurisdiction."

In the first six months of 1938 there were 236 applications for new home construction loans amounting to $1,178,000. In the similar period for 1939 there were 762 applications totaling $4,052,100.

Loans Averaged
The average loan in 1938 was $4,992 against $5,317 in 1939. This increase, Guckert explained, was due to changes in the federal law which allowed loans to 90 instead of 80 percent of the property's appraised value.

Citing how pronounced the "boom" was, Guckert said that construction usually shades off in June, not picking up until August. But in June, 1939, loan applications totaled $936,500 against $202,800 in 1938.

The Authority's total business in the district, counting existing properties and new construction, totaled $4,647,200 in the 1938 period and $8,148,700 in 1939.

In the Columbus district, Guckert said, construction work had displayed most increases in the Lima and Dayton areas and Franklin county.

"There is a special tendency in those areas and elsewhere in the district toward small home construction," the director declared. "Small homes are constructed efficiently and with no waste of space."

He estimated that where ever

Rehoboam: Made a Foolish Choice

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for July 16 is I King 12:1-20, the Golden Text being Proverbs 29:23. "A man's pride shall bring low")

"AND SOLOMON slept with his fathers, and was buried in the city of David his father and Rehoboam his son reigned in his stead."

Thus ended last week's lesson Rehoboam went down to Shechem to be crowned and many went there to see the crowning. Now, as soon as Solomon was dead, many of the prominent men sent to Egypt whence Jeroboam had fled. You remember, of course, how the prophet, Ahijah, had told him he would rule over ten tribes of Israel if he would promise to walk in the way of the Lord. The Israelites wanted him to be their leader.

Jeroboam came and led a deputation to call on Rehoboam and ask him what he would do for them. "Thy father made our yoke grievous: now therefore make thou the grievous service of thy father, and his heavy yoke which he put upon us, lighter, and we will serve thee," they told him. This was Rehoboam's chance to right the wrongs that had been inflicted on his people by King Solomon in the latter days of his rule. At that time he asked for more time to think the matter over and consult his advisers. "Depart yet for three days, then come again to me," he said, and they departed.

Calls Father's Counsellors
Then Rehoboam called together the men who had been his father's counsellors, and asked them what answer he should give to the people. Their answer was: "If thou wilt be a servant unto this people this day, and wilt serve them, and answer them, and speak good words to them, then they will be thy servants forever."

Rehoboam had not inherited any of his father's wisdom, for this advice did not satisfy him and hein called together the young men who had grown up with him and asked them what his answer to his people should be. And what to you suppose these smart young men counseled him? They told him to say: "Whereas my father did lade you with a heavy yoke. I will add to your yoke; my father hath chastised you with whips, but I will chastise you with scorpions."

And Rehoboam actually did answer the people in that way when they came to him on the third day, as he had said. You can imagine how angry they were, and how they went away storming, saying, "What portion have we in David? neither have we inheritance in the son of Jesses to your tents. O Israel now see to thine own house, David". Meaning that David's descendant was nothing to them, and they would go home and refuse to be ruled by Rehoboam. And so it was that Rehoboam lost ten of the tribes of Israel and had only one left, the tribe of Judah for when he sent a man by the name of Adoram to collect tribute from his subjects they stoned and killed him, so that Rehoboam got into his chariot and fled to Jerusalem. "A man's pride shall bring him low," says our Golden Text, and indeed it is so.

It was indeed a foolish choice that Rehoboam made, and I imagine he deeply regretted it. It is a choice we, too, must make, although we rule over no people and have inherited no throne. But it is a choice between being thoughtful of others, considerate of their feelings, treating them as we would like to be treated. And if we do this we will be much happier all our lives and so much more useful to a world that so sadly needs strong, faithful, broad-minded people, "with charity to all and malice toward none."

In the week's reading is included the story of Ruth, who was a loyal friend and daughter-in-law. Do you remember the story of the man who went to live in a strange land because there was a famine his own? He took with him his wife and two sons. His wife's name was Naomi. Both his sons married women of this new land, and one son married a girl by the name of Ruth. In course of time both sons died and Naomi started back to her native land, and with her the sons' wives. After a time they came to a parting of the ways, and Naomi told her sons' wives to go back to their own people. One did, but Ruth would not leave her mother-in-law, saying, "Interest me not to leave thee, or to return from following after thee: for whither thou goest I will go; and where thou lodgest I will lodge; thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God."

Naomi must have been a very good mother-in-law, to win such love and loyalty, and Ruth must have been a very loving and appreciative person, must she not?

PARK ARGUMENT ENDS IN DEATH, MURDER CHARGE

CHICAGO, July 14—An argument about a park bench left one man dead and another facing murder charges.

According to police, August Olson, 72, whose job was to pick up papers in a city park, ordered John Migliaccio, 60, off a lawn last Wednesday and told him to sit on a bench instead. Migliaccio refused and in the ensuing argument Olson slapped him.

Migliaccio returned to the park yesterday with a gun, police said, and shot Olson to death, after which he gave himself up to a policeman with the comment: "I wouldn't take a slap from anyone."

Federal Housing Official
Says Construction Up
By High Percentage

762 APPLICATIONS FILED

County Listed In District
Showing Splendid Gain
During 1939

COLUMBUS, July 14—A sharp spurt in construction during the first six months of 1939 has stimulated business generally in 43 Ohio counties, A. L. Guckert, Federal Housing Authority director for the Columbus district, reported today.

Referring to the oft proven statement that when building construction increased, business itself leaps ahead accordingly, Guckert reported a 223 percent increase in loan applications over 1938 and a 244 percent increase in value of loans.

"The increased activity in new home construction amounts to a small boom," Guckert said. "The building spurt in general has stimulated business in the 43 counties in our jurisdiction."

In the first six months of 1939 there were 236 applications for new home construction loans amounting to $1,178,000. In the similar period for 1938 there were 762 applications totaling $4,052,100.

Loans Averaged

The average loan in 1938 was $4,992 against $5,317 in 1939. This increase, Guckert explained was due to changes in the federal law which allowed loans to 90 instead of 80 percent of the property's appraised value.

Citing how pronounced the "boom" was, Guckert said that construction usually shades off in June, not picking up until August. But in June, 1939, loan applications totaled $936,500 against $202,800 in 1938.

The Authority's total business in the district, counting existing properties and new construction, totaled $4,647,200 in the 1938 period and $8,148,700 in 1939.

In the Columbus district, Guckert said, construction work had displayed most increases in the Lima and Dayton areas and Franklin county.

"There is a special tendency in those areas and elsewhere in the district toward small home construction," the director declared. "Small homes are constructed efficiently and with no waste of space."

county jail on charges growing out of the riot Wednesday in which a miner was killed and eight others were injured today looked to the United Mine Workers to supply bail for their release.

All the defendants were arraigned on charges of "banding and confederating to incite trouble" and most were held under bonds of $1,000 each. Total bonds demanded aggregated $235,000. Examining trials for the defendants were set for next Monday by County Judge E. C. Ball.

In addition to the "banding" charge Tiltler was accused of sedition, rebellion and forcible assault and attack on national guardsmen. Tiltler's wife also was jailed.

attempts were made to climb the walls.

Foreign observers expressed belief the demonstration resulted from military dissatisfaction over the Japanese government's willingness to negotiate on diplomatic grounds with Britain regarding the status of Tientsin.

This dissatisfaction was reflected in nationwide mass meetings and parades of farmers, students and reservists. The British ambassador, Sir Robert Leslie Craigie, was most perturbed, but he declined to say whether he planned a protest.

"Enemy of Humanity"

In the resolution adopted by the Tokyo mass meeting, Britain was condemned as an "enemy of humanity" and attacked for allegedly supporting the regime of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek. The resolution stated Britain has "reduced China to a colonial status to exploit her in the most brutal and inhuman way."

The resolution demanded that Britain abandon her concessions in China and "withdraw from the Far East." Official Japanese news agency dispatches translated the resolution as demanding "overthrow of the British Empire" by Japan, but a careful reading indicated the drafters of the document meant Japan must overcome alleged British efforts to restrict creation of Japan's "new order in East Asia."

Thousands of furious Japanese entirely surrounded the embassy compound, cutting off all chance for the staff and members of their families to escape through the rain of missiles. Repeated waves of police reinforcements were unable to cope with the throng's surging charges until 3:35 o'clock this afternoon, when the police force mounted to the hundreds.

Another Attack Feared

Another attack, possibly on a larger scale, was looked for tonight, and a strong force of police was kept on guard, while hundreds more were held in reserve for instant call.

A hail of stones and sticks flew over the heads of the struggling police in this afternoon's battle, smashing some of the embassy windows.

Members of the staff of Ambassador Sir Robert Leslie Craigie, including women typists and interpreters on the first floor, evacuated the front rooms during the two-hour attack, to avoid the brickbats flying towards the building.

Small fences and shrubbery were broken down by some members of the mob who succeeded in entering the compound, which was littered with flags, banners, and leaflets.

vage ship Falcon as they saw the Squalus bow break through the water, hold there lurking for 10 seconds, and then plunge back beneath the water. They realized the navy had lost in its first bid to harness the Squalus and bring her back to port.

May Remain Upright

Navy officials agreed that the Squalus probably had been damaged, but Rear Admiral Cole voiced the opinion that when she settled back to the sticky mud bottom she remained upright.

Divers were ordered to descend today to determine the exact position of the submarine and the extent of the damage.

If another salvage attempt is possible, it was estimated, it cannot be made before next September at the earliest.

Weeks of work lay ahead of the divers. They must clear the tangled debris of lines, cables and pontoon wreckage, and dig new chain channels under the hull.

Reason for the sudden lunge of the bow, it was believed, was that the forward part of the Squalus—from where 33 survivors were rescued, was filled with air, while the stern, where 26 bodies still remained, was filled with 800 tons of water.

Navy officials knew this, and had calculated their preparations in an effort to overcome the difference in the weight of the craft fore and aft, but in the minutes during which the pontoons were being filled with air, something apparently went wrong.

PLAYGROUND WINS 5-4

The soft-ball team from the A. M. E. playground defeated Washington C. H. in the Fayette city, Thursday by a score of 5 to 4. PETER ASTRA FAVORITE TO TAKE HAMBLETONIAN

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, Me., July 14—Peter Astra was more of a favorite than ever today to capture the 1939 Hambletonian after taking the national stake for three-year-old trotting Hambletonian eligibles in three straight heats.

Diana Dyer won the second heat of the trot for three-year-old fillies which was carried over from the day before because of rain. Countess Hanover won the National stake for juvenile pacers, also carried over.

BILL CONN WINS BOXING HONORS FROM BETTINA

By Pat Robinson

NEW YORK, July 14 — Billy Conn—21, Irish and handsome is the new light heavyweight champion of the world.

He is the new king of the division because he was able to out-speed, out-punch and, above all, outthink Mello Bettina, from whose battle-browed dome he knocked the diadem in 15 torrid rounds in Madison Square Garden last night.

Yes, Billy is deservedly the light heavyweight champion but I doubt that he'll ever realize his ambition to be heavyweight champion of the world.

He has every qualification but one to be heavyweight boss. He has the head, the heart, the speed, the fighting instinct, and the punch. But he lacks that all important essential—the weight.

Billy simply is not big enough and I doubt that he ever will be. He hasn't the frame to pack weight enough to meet a man like Joe Louis. You may have heard how fast and big he's been growing. That was strictly the bunk.

He weighed in at 170 1/4 for his title fight and if you fed him nothing but steak and spuds for the next ten years he probably would weigh no more.

Billy showed plenty of temper as a middleweight when he let his anger betray him into wide open battling against such a punishing hitter as Fred Apostoli.

But against Bettina he used his head to better advantage and it was his ability to outsmart the slow-moving and slower thinking Bettina rather than his punching that brought him victory.

attempts were made to climb the walls.

Foreign observers expressed belief the demonstration resulted from military dissatisfaction over the Japanese government's willingness to negotiate on diplomatic grounds with Britain regarding the status of Tientsin.

This dissatisfaction was reflected in nationwide mass meetings and parades of farmers, students and reservists. The British ambassador, Sir Robert Leslie Craigie, was most perturbed, but he declined to say whether he planned a protest.

"Enemy of Humanity"

In the resolution adopted by the Tokyo mass meeting, Britain was condemned as an "enemy of humanity" and attacked for allegedly supporting the regime of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek. The resolution stated Britain has "reduced China to a colonial status to exploit her in the most brutal and inhuman way."

The resolution demanded that Britain abandon her concessions in China and "withdraw from the Far East." Official Japanese news agency dispatches translated the resolution as demanding "overthrow of the British Empire" by Japan, but a careful reading indicated the drafters of the document meant Japan must overcome alleged British efforts to restrict creation of Japan's "new order in East Asia."

Thousands of furious Japanese entirely surrounded the embassy compound, cutting off all chance for the staff and members of their families to escape through the rain of missiles. Repeated waves of police reinforcements were unable to cope with the throng's surging charges until 3:35 o'clock this afternoon, when the police force mounted to the hundreds.

Another Attack Feared

Another attack, possibly on a larger scale, was looked for tonight, and a strong force of police was kept on guard, while hundreds more were held in reserve for instant call.

A hail of stones and sticks flew over the heads of the struggling police in this afternoon's battle, smashing some of the embassy windows.

Members of the staff of Ambassador Sir Robert Leslie Craigie, including women typists and interpreters on the first floor, evacuated the front rooms during the two-hour attack, to avoid the brickbats flying towards the building.

Small fences and shrubbery were broken down by some members of the mob who succeeded in entering the compound, which was littered with flags, banners, and leaflets.

REPORT OF QUINTUPLETS MYTH, MEXICANS DECLARE

MEXICO CITY, July 14—When Senor Julian Carbonell of Puerto Alvaro Oregon told the newspaper El Universal he was the father of quintuplets born Monday night, the ministry of communications, commandeered a military airplane and sent three doctors and three nurses off to the scene.

They hardly had time to get there, however, before the ministry advised the newspapers: "There is no truth in the quintuplets report."

"NO NEWS YET"—F. D.

WASHINGTON, July 14—President Roosevelt told his press conference today that there "was no news yet" on the administration's next effort to obtain congressional action on its neutrality program at this session. Mr. Roosevelt added, however, that he planned to confer with Secretary of State Cordell Hull today.

vage ship Falcon as they saw the Squalus bow break through the water, hold there lurching for 10 seconds, and then plunge back beneath the water. They realized the navy had lost in its first bid to harness the Squalus and bring her back to port.

May Remain Upright

Navy officials agreed that the Squalus probably had been damaged, but Rear Admiral Cole voiced the opinion that when she settled back to the sticky mud bottom she remained upright.

Divers were ordered to descend today to determine the exact position of the submarine and the extent of the damage.

If another salvage attempt is possible, it was estimated, it cannot be made before next September at the earliest.

Weeks of work lay ahead of the divers. They must clear the tangled debris of lines, cables and pontoon wreckage, and dig new new chain channels under the hull.

Reason for the sudden lunge of the bow, it was believed, was that the forward part of the Squalus—from where 33 survivors were rescued, was filled with air, while the stern, where 26 bodies still remained, was filled with 800 tons of water.

Navy officials knew this, and had calculated their preparations in an effort to overcome the difference in the weight of the craft fore and aft, but in the minutes during which the pontoons were being filled with air, something apparently went wrong.

PLAYGROUND WINS 5-4

The soft-ball team from the A. M. E. playground defeated Washington C. H. in the Fayette city, Thursday by a score of 5 to 4. The team under the coaching of Melvin Bass, did some very brilliant playing in the closing innings of the game while Washington tried to stave off defeat. Robert Barnes was on the mound for the locals. The features of the game were home runs by Pat Mogan and Charles Fletcher.

PETER ASTRA FAVORITE TO TAKE HAMBLETONIAN

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, Me., July 14—Peter Astra was more of a favorite than ever today to capture the 1939 Hambletonian after taking the national stake for three-year-old trotting Hambletonian eligibles in three straight heats. Driven by Dr. Hugh Parshall, the Ohio took the first two heats in 2:03½ each and made the third in 2:03½. The stake totaled $9,914.

Kuno, a bay colt driven by Harry Whitney, took the other feature, a trot for 1937 foals, and a purse of $4,593.

Diana Dyer won the second heat of the trot for three-year-old fillies which was carried over from the day before because of rain. Countess Hanover won the National stake for juvenile pacers, also carried over.

FOWLER IN FORM

Pug Fowler had a good game started Thursday evening only to lose it because of rain. The Blue Ribbon Dairy outfit invaded Mt. Sterling to play the Pure Oils under the lights. At the end of three innings the Circleville boys led 1 to 0 and Fowler had not allowed a hit. Rain forced cancellation as the fourth inning started.

Recently planted trees and shrubs are most likely to require attention and should not only be well watered below but have their tops sprinkled at nightfall if they show any signs of flagging.

BILL CONN WINS BOXING HONORS FROM BETTINA

By Pat Robinson

NEW YORK, July 14 — Billy Conn—21, Irish and handsome is the new light heavyweight champion of the world.

He is the new king of the division because he was able to outspeed, outpunch and, above all, outthink Mello Bettina, from whose beetle-browed dome he knocked the diadem in 15 torrid rounds in Madison Square Garden last night.

Yes, Billy is deservedly the light heavyweight champion but I doubt that he'll ever realize his ambition to be heavyweight champion of the world.

He has every qualification but one to be heavyweight boss. He has the head, the heart, the speed, the fighting instinct, and the punch. But he lacks that all important essential—the weight.

Billy simply is not big enough and I doubt that he ever will be. He hasn't the frame to pack weight enough to meet a man like Joe Louis. You may have heard how fast and big he's been growing. That was strictly the bunk. He weighed in at 170½ for his title fight and if you fed him nothing but steak and spuds for the next ten years he probably would weigh no more.

Billy showed plenty of temper as a middleweight when he let his anger betray him into wide open battling against such a punishing hitter as Fred Apostoli.

But against Bettina he used his head to better advantage and it was his ability to outsmart the slow-moving and slower thinking Bettina rather than his punching that brought him victory.

FOUR PRO STARS REMAIN IN RACE FOR HIGH HONOR

By Lawton Carver

POMONOK COUNTRY CLUB, FLUSHING, N. Y., July 14—The hottest golfer and the hottest putter in the National Professional championship met today in the feature of two matches, with Open Champion Lord Byron Nelson, the party of the first part, favored to win and go on from there to the title tomorrow. If the thing runs to the script, he thus would be the second man in the 22-year history of the colorful and unpredictable event to hold the P. G. A. and Open crowns at the same time. Gene Sarazen was the first and last in 1922.

Nelson's opponent was Ernest J. (Dutch) Harrison, string-beanish Arkansas now located at Oak Park, Ill., who has enjoyed a run of skill and luck on the greens to such impressive extent that Nelson has offered $10 to the man who will break, steal or otherwise remove Harrison's putter from the proceedings.

In today's other semi-final, Dick Metz, the Kansas glamour boy with the cordovan tan, engaged Henry Picard, of the Plymouth Rock Picards, who is better known as the chocolate soldier from Hershey, Pa. Picard was favored, but there is small likelihood of any more one-sided matches such as some we have seen.

KASEYS THUMP RED BIRDS, GO FARTHER AHEAD

COLUMBUS, July 14—A two-and-one-half game lead over the rest of the American Association field went to the Kansas City Blues today as their double victory over Columbus was marked down.

For while the Blues were winning their two encounters, the Minneapolis Millers fell twice before those pesky Indianapolis Indians. The Millers were nosed out in the first game, 6 to 5, and dropped the nightcap, 3 to 1.

Columbus was the victim of superior pitching as Kansas City hurlers held them to a total of 11 hits in two games. The Blues captured the first game 6 to 2 and the second 4 to 2.

In games that didn't count so much, Milwaukee took Toledo's measure twice, 6 to 3 and 5 to 0, and St. Paul beat Louisville, 12 to 4 and 8 to 6.

WALTERS HURLS REDLEGS TO 7-0 WIN OVER TERRY

NEW YORK, July 14—If Bucky Walters could pitch every day, Manager Bill McKechnie of the Cincinnati Redlegs probably would feel safer.

Yesterday, the converted infielder chalked up his fourteenth victory of the season against six defeats as the Reds shutout the threatening New York Giants, 7 to 0. And for a time it looked as if Berger's homer in the second inning might prove the margin of victory. But in the ninth, Cincinnati batted around to score five times. Harry Craft also hit for the circuit in the sixth.

Bill Terry's Giants had just two safeties off Berger when the ninth frame rolled around. Weakening momentarily, Bucky gave up three singles but settled down to make Kampouris and Kenny O'Dea ground out to end the Giant scoring threat. Five hits were all the New Yorkers got.

SWISS DECLARE NAZIS BECOME TRIESTE POWER

10-Year Lease Reported On Mediterranean Island Through Italy's Aid

ROME DENIAL EMPHATIC

Geneva Hears Reich Sends Troops, Supplies To Northern Africa

GENEVA, Switzerland, July 14.—German expansion — this time with the aid of the Reich's ally, Italy, and by contractual means — has reached out to the Adriatic Sea through a ten-year lease on the port of Trieste, according to unconfirmed reports today.

The Reich has taken over complete control of the city, the rumors said, and has been operating the port as a free city for about a month.

(A flat denial that any lease had been accorded to Germany in Trieste was issued in Rome by the Italian foreign office and ministry of popular culture. There has been no agreement giving Germany "fresh" privileges in the port, it was stated.)

(Reports have been current in Rome for some time that a plan was contemplated to accord to Germany the same rights in Trieste which Austria enjoyed before the Anschluss.)

(No such agreement is in effect yet, it was insisted, however.)

(With the comment: "If these reports are true, it would appear that Germany already is a Mediterranean power," the story of the alleged Trieste lease was carried in the Paris newspaper Excelsior. The paper's Zurich correspondent said he investigated the situation and added: "what is certain is that the Germans are actually engaged in extensive construction works in Trieste.")

Into North China

Swiss reports — which tied in with suggestions that the expulsion of foreigners from Italy's Bolzano province was related to German troop movements southward — said that German troops and war supplies are being sent through Trieste to Libya, Italian North African colony.

Italian transports are being used by the Germans, the rumors asserted. It was stated that the Germans go to Trieste as civilians, and change into army uniforms while at sea.

Reports here and in Paris said Italy authorized Germany to build grain elevators, an air base, naval shipyard, and new docks at Trieste.

Trieste was one of the plums given to Italy as a reward for breaking off the triple alliance and joining the World War on the allies' side.

The city, which now has a population of 250,000, formerly was the chief port of the Austro-Hungarian empire. Preponderantly Italian in population, it was ceded to Italy by the treaty of St. Germain. Austria and Hungary, however, were given port privileges at Trieste and the city flourished until German annexed Austria and Austrian goods were routed north to Hamburg.

Rev. C. D. and Mrs. Besch of Canton stopped Thursday while on their way to visit at the home of Amazon and Mrs. Clark in Walnut township, brother and sister-in-law of the Besches. The Reverend told us that at his Lutheran church in his home city of Canton he has a membership enrollment of 1100. While Rev. Besch is past the three score and ten in age, he has no notion of retiring from the ministry. And as an item of news to the average Ashville citizen, Rev. Besch is one of the seventeen who owned and edited the Ashville newspapers since the first one in 1883.

As planned now, B. C. and Mrs. Morrison will leave Ashville Saturday morning, for Cortland, New York state, to visit their son-in-law and daughter, Robert and Mrs. Wright.

The location of the open-air picture show has been changed since last evening from the street to the L. B. Foreman parking place. Street traffic will not now be interfered with.

Roger Hedges along with the other hybrid seed con growers have good sized forces of workers doing detasseling work, and this means going over the same corn rows a half dozen or more times during the growing season. This gives employment to many who otherwise would be idle. The hundreds of corn acres of river bottom sweet corn land which had been flooded by the river a few weeks ago, has been replanted and according to reports given us by farmers contacted, the new growth is doing fine and promises a crop unless destroyed by an early frost.

Harry Topolosky, wife and son Doreen are along the Lakes vacationing for several days.

"If it is a job you want to stick to, get it on Friday and it will stay put, at least this proved true in my case," a friendly salesman said to us the other day when we started in handing him "the third." And on that day he was telling about it, said it was just 37 years that he began sweeping and cleaning up things down in the basement of a Columbus wholesale concern. He now autos around and serves 223 retail store people he has been calling upon for these many years, and likes it, he said, Claive Hay, we are telling you about and suspect many of you know him.

Ashville
Amazon Clark in Grant hospital for several days for observation returned home Thursday afternoon with condition improved. "Some better" was the word from Grover Cline's nurse. . . . Susan Hummel has sold her Duvall dwelling property to Mrs. Robert Hides. . . . The village council will be in session next Monday evening.

SWISS DECLARE NAZIS BECOME TRIESTE POWER

10-Year Lease Reported On Mediterranean Island Through Italy's Aid

ROME DENIAL EMPHATIC

Geneva Hears Reich Sends Troops, Supplies To Northern Africa

GENEVA, Switzerland, July 14.—German expansion — this time with the aid of the Reich's ally, Italy, and by contractual means — has reached out to the Adriatic Sea through a ten-year lease on the port of Trieste, according to unconfirmed reports today.

The Reich has taken over complete control of the city, the rumors said, and has been operating the port as a free city for about a month.

(A flat denial that any lease had been accorded to Germany in Trieste was issued in Rome by the Italian foreign office and ministry of popular culture. There has been no agreement giving Germany "fresh" privileges in the port, it was stated.)

(Reports have been current in Rome for some time that a plan was contemplated to accord to Germany the same rights in Trieste which Austria enjoyed before the Anschluss.)

(No such agreement is in effect yet, it was insisted, however.)

(With the comment: "If these reports are true, it would appear that Germany already is a Mediterranean power," the story of the alleged Trieste lease was carried in the Paris newspaper Excelsior. The paper's Zurich correspondent said he investigated the situation and added: "what is certain is that the Germans are actually engaged in extensive construction works in Trieste.")

Into North China

Swiss reports — which tied in with suggestions that the expulsion of foreigners from Italy's Bolzano province was related to German troop movements southward — said that German troops and war supplies are being sent through Trieste to Libya, Italian North African colony.

Italian transports are being used by the Germans, the rumors asserted. It was stated that the Germans go to Trieste as civilians, and change into army uniforms while at sea.

Reports here and in Paris said Italy authorized Germany to build grain elevators, an air base, naval shipyard, and new docks at Trieste.

Trieste was one of the plums given to Italy as a reward for breaking off the triple alliance and joining the World War on the allies' side.

The city, which now has a population of 250,000, formerly was the chief port of the Austro-Hungarian empire. Preponderantly Italian in population, it was ceded to Italy by the treaty of St. Germain. Austria and Hungary, however, were given port privileges at Trieste and the city flourished until Germany annexed Austria and Austrian goods were routed north to Hamburg.

Rev. C. D. and Mrs. Besch of Canton stopped Thursday while on their way to visit at the home of Amazon and Mrs. Clark in Walnut township, brother and sister-in-law of the Besches. The Reverend told us that at his Lutheran church in his home city of Canton he has a membership enrollment of 1100. While Rev. Besch is past the three score and ten in age, he has no notion of retiring from the ministry. And as an item of news to the average Ashville citizen, Rev. Besch is one of the seventeen who owned and edited the Ashville newspapers since the first one in 1883.

As planned now, B. C. and Mrs. Morrison will leave Ashville Saturday morning, for Cortland, New York state, to visit their son-in-law and daughter, Robert and Mrs. Wright.

The location of the open-air picture show has been changed since last evening from the street to the L. B. Forsman parking place. Street traffic will not now be interfered with.

This gives employment to many who otherwise would be idle. The hundreds of corn acres of river bottom sweet corn land which had been flooded by the river a few weeks ago, has been replanted and according to reports given us by farmers contacted, the new growth is doing fine and promises a

OPEN LETTERS

TO EARL W. LUTZ

SIR: Patrons of the Citizens Telephone Co. lose a good friend in your retirement from the utility organization which you have served for so many years. It was about 37 years ago that you took over active management of the telephone company and at that time you found it with about 400 customers. Today that organization has grown to exceed 3,000 users. This, alone, is a tribute to your splendid management and to the efficiency of the company you represented. I hope that you are able to enjoy many, many years of leisure that you so much deserve. The community offers a glad hand, too, to your successor.

CIRCUITEER.

TO CIRCLEVILLE FOLK

RESIDENTS: Announcement of the service department that the city's sidewalk and curb project under W. P. A. will be reopened next Monday should please many Circleville folk. This project, operated extensively in past years, provides an opportunity to property owners to obtain the improvements at a low cost. Material costs are charged to property owners with labor provided by W. P. A. Many sections of Circleville streets have been improved under the program. There are still many uneven brick sidewalks in the city that should be improved. These improvements provide employment for relief labor.

CIRCUITEER.

TO KIWANIANS

MEMBERS: Kiwanians are to be congratulated on their plans for a camp for 20 underprivileged boys at Gold Cliff during August. Other civic organizations should follow a similar program. A civic organization can do no greater service than to give underprivileged children of the community proper training for citizenship. By having pastors select the boys it is certain they will be the type that will greatly benefit from a week's program of training in citizenship and recreation. Funds for the camp were obtained from the Police and Firemen's ball, sponsored by the club. These funds could not be put to a better use than for a youth camp. If this year's camp is successful, it should be made an annual affair.

CIRCUITEER.

TO BOY AND GIRL SCOUTS

YOUNGSTERS: Don't miss the first annual Scout picnic to be held Monday at Gold Cliff park. Numerous activities have been arranged for your enjoyment. There will be athletic contests, swimming events and free swimming and roller skating for Scouts. Parents and friends of Scouts should show their interest in the Scout program of the district by attending the picnic with the youngsters. A district picnic should be an annual undertaking.

CIRCUITEER.

TO CIVIC CLUBS, INDIVIDUALS

ALL: Circleville has a project under way now that means much to the youngsters of the community. It is the playground undertaking that is being fostered by the Elks lodge in conjunction with several of the civic organizations. A financial campaign has been started; many of the city's outstanding citizens are giving their time and bending all efforts to make the campaign for $10,000 a success. Why can't you join in the drive by making a substantial contribution? It has been a civic shame for many, many years that Circleville has been without a playground of any sort. More and more, responsible residents of the city have grown to understand that they owe a debt to youngsters. Now, the opportunity is provided to purchase the necessary land and assure its use as a playground. There are many persons in Circleville financially able to contribute sizeable checks to the fund; there are many others who are better fitted to give a quarter, a half dollar or a dollar. Regardless of the size of the contribution, it will be appreciated, and it will go a long way toward providing Circleville's children with a place to play.

CIRCUITEER.

TO PROPERTY OWNERS

FRIENDS: Did you notice the warning issued this week by the Chamber of Commerce and Retail Merchants association concerning the operations of some high pressure salesmen? That warning was issued by the businessmen for YOUR protection. These salesmen, representing out-of-town interests, are soliciting property owners for re-siding and re-roofing contracts at $40 to $45 per square. Circleville contractors and dealers declare that they supply similar quality material and labor at $25 to $30 per square. Confer with your local contractor for your home improvements. Circleville contractors and builders' supply dealers have built their businesses on fair dealing with the public with quality merchandise. Home owners know they will receive full value in materials and labor from Circleville firms. Buy at home.

CIRCUITEER.

TO PUBLIC LIBRARY

EMPLOYEES: Public library workers should be proud of the records established so far this year on the circulation of books for boys and girls. All indications are that a new record will be established in 1939 for juvenile reading. It is interesting to note the tremendous gains made since the book truck has been placed in operation. In 1937 boys and girls read 9,523 library books. In 1938, with the book truck in operation, the circulation figure was boosted to 63,854. This year promises a new record with 34,073 books circulated in the first five months of the year. More children of Circleville and Pickaway county are taking advantage of the opportunities offered them to obtain books.

World At A Glance

THE CONGRESSIONAL fight over the president's right to devalue the dollar was like a tremendously exciting story.

In our last installment we had the issue in conference between the senate and the house of representatives. The representatives already had voted to let the White House go on devaluing. It looked then as if the senators would vote the same way. The pro-devaluation group was in a majority. But quite a handful of these "pros" were desperately anxious to have the treasury pay a higher price for the silver which their states produce. The silverites' trouble was that they were in a minority on their paramount issue, just as the anti-devaluationists were in a minority on theirs. The anti-devaluationists generally opposed higher silver prices, too.

However, the anti-devaluationists were far more interested in oustering the president out of his devaluation power than they were in keeping the price of silver down. And the silverites were far more interested in boosting the price of silver than they were in continuing the presidential devaluation authority.

So the anti-devaluationists swallowed silver, in return for which the silverites gulped down anti-devaluation.

In that way the combination got an anti-devaluation-pro-silver majority. Thus the administration (which wanted devaluation but didn't want inflated silver) was licked.

SENATORS VERSUS REPRESENTATIVES

That is to say, the administration was licked so far as the senate was concerned; the other chamber still was on the administrative side—both as to silver and devaluation.

Well, when the two houses disagree like this their system is to appoint a joint conference committee, to seek a compromise.

If a compromise proves to be impossible, that piece of proposed legislation fails. In this instance a disagreement meant that the silverites wouldn't get any higher prices and devaluation would go by the board also, by limitation—a victory for the anti-devaluationists, but a defeat for the silverites.

The conference committee got busy.

It was slightly (but only slightly) dominated by New Dealers—in other words administrationists. The conference majority members said, among themselves: "We care more for devaluation's continuation than we do to keep the 'silver price down.' Accordingly, they cooked up a report providing for continued devaluation and for a somewhat hiked silver price—not at much of a hike as the silverites had asked for, but enough, it was hoped, to bust up the anti-devaluation-silver partnership.

It was 100 percently indorsed, but it was a majority report. As such it went in. It was a foregone conclusion that the representatives would o. k. it.

It wasn't so sure as to the senate.

In the senate the question was: Would the silverites, getting part of what they demanded, be bought off from their compact with the anti-devaluationists? Most of the guessing, at the time, was affirmative.

DIET AND HEALTH

Good Health May Depend On Feet

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
GOOD HEALTH is as much dependent on good feet as on any other two things in the body. "Feeble feet make feeble folk" is a slogan that has been suggested for adoption by some philanthropic society.

We have said that summer is a good time to cultivate health and that we should cultivate the foundations—our bones and joints—by improving posture. Much bad posture is due to weak feet and certainly we can consider the feet to be foundation structures.

"Flat foot" used to be blamed for much of the agony of painful feet. "Weak foot" is a much better term, because it puts the emphasis on function instead of structure. A foot may be very flat—that is, the arch

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

may sag very low—but if the muscles are strong enough to make it function properly, no trouble results. A perfectly flat foot may give no discomfort, whereas a high-arched, race-horse type of foot may cause agony because the muscles are on a strain.

Many Symptoms
The symptoms that flat foot causes are many—pain in the feet is one of the last to appear. Pain in the muscles of the calf, which are on a strain, is common. And this soon is transferred to pain in the back, because the strain is carried upward. Weak foot will cause a gradual change in a person's habits. You used to walk or run, now you stand. You stood, now you sit. This causes you to gain weight, and this adds to the foot's burden so that a vicious circle is created. The fatter you get, the more strain is placed on the foot. The more strain there is on the foot, the less you exercise. The less you exercise, the fatter you get. Round and round.

It is long standing still, not walking, that breaks the foot down fastest. Callouses may be the first sign of improper use of the feet. The use of arch supporters, or shoes recommended by shoe clerks, may give relief for a time, but only a short time, because they do not strengthen the muscles. And it is strain on the muscles that causes the pain.

I am glad to see that orthopedic surgeons are becoming less radical in their recommendations about shoes. Dr. Dudley Morton, of Columbia, does not think that faulty footwear explains the majority of painful or weak feet. And Dr. Armitage Whitman, very sensibly it seems to me, in his book, From Head to Foot, calls attention to the danger in an abrupt change from high heels to flat heels.

"Low heels," he quotes one of those overheard conversations that all doctors should listen to, "my dear, I tried them once and I give you my word I never suffered as I did in the two weeks I wore those shoes."

Foot trouble may be classified as:

1. Irritation. Callouses and corns, which must be cleared up before a good foot is possible. Here proper shoes are important preventives.

2. Inflammatory changes—Arthritis of the foot. The best treatment is contrast plunges. Put the feet in a bucket of hot water for a half-minute, then in a bucket of cold water for half a minute. Repeat the process four times. The timing is important, says Dr. Dudley Morton in the health magazine, Hygieia. In this condition rest is also important.

3. Disordered mechanics. Here, on the contrary, exercises for the feet are indicated. Raising on the heels, then on the toes, picking up marbles with the toes. Dr. Whitman recommends standing in the stocking feet with the heels against the baseboard of the wall and bending the knees.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SEVEN

FOR A BRIEF moment, after Judith's amazing statement that Bob was in love with her, Sarah Anne, the face of the minister's older daughter grew tighter with attention. Then the muscles let go.

Judy, bless her heart, didn't know how Bob had spurned her. No, that was ended. And she had said that she was going to be a parachute jumper who would brave the stratosphere. Not only SAID it, but meant it. There was something she must do with her life, and maybe this was it.

Judy was quick to understand her mood. "Go on, Sarah Anne, learn all you can. Sure you mean it, though?"

"Never surer." Not for any inducement would she relent now. Robert Kennedy had heard her make her vow.

"I'm thinking of going into aviation seriously. It's been in the back of my mind for a long time. And now—well, my father isn't as good a sport as yours. He employed Bing and he invited him to our house—that's how I met him—but now it's all my fault. I need a stimulant, too. Let's get together."

They met the future in that moment and accepted it. Older generations might have wept or fainted. But they were going on, going high.

But Sarah Anne was trying to tell herself that life without love would be a splendid thing. There would be no danger of hurt. You would walk calmly, and if there were no peaks of ecstasy, there would be no valleys. After all, one needed a protection against life and love, and if adventure was that, she would wear it.

The minister stayed in his study a long time one night. When he came out, he had a heavy white envelope, addressed and stamped, in his hand.

"I'm going to the corner letter box," he said.

"I'll go with you," Sarah Anne offered. She knew the contents of that envelope. They would be much the same as the phrases she had written in the superintendent's office.

She spoke only once as they walked down the quiet August street.

"The church won't accept it." "You think not? You know, Sarah Anne, I've been darning to hope that very thing. But this is the only kind of a gesture I can make. What a mess I got our family in! Oh, you'll say I had nothing to do with it, but there are some others who'll say I should have had my eye on my household. Here's the mailbox."

She made daily jumps that week, and then there were none for another week, because the whole family went into Chicago where the case of Robin-Lynn Rhodes was being presented. He looked lithe and assured when he was brought into the courtroom. He oozed to his friends and chatted with his attorneys. He was facing the federal penitentiary, but he preserved his gallantry.

Flashlight bulbs exploded, reporters crowded around the parsonage family, and the whole proceeding became a ghastly nightmare.

Sarah Anne and Corrinne sat down at a coffee shop counter, late that first night, when the others had retired. The wet wind was blowing in from Lake Michigan and they could see lights gleaming, far down the Loop.

"When the drums die down—what then?" Sarah Anne asked, smoothing out the skirt of her simple blue suit. She had worn a gay striped blouse today and a turban that matched its crimson shade.

"The weary warriors rest," Corrinne finished. "Did you know that Bob Ransom wants me to marry him soon? Only, of course, I won't. He must finish college and I want to. They'll take me back, I wrote. And I'm going to wait table for my maid and make beds for my room."

"But you needn't! I can help. Only she couldn't. She didn't have a job. She wouldn't receive a pay check twice a month. And her father didn't know if he was remaining in his present church or going on to another ministry. Or there might be a period of waiting, until he knew."

"People have been mighty good to us," Corrinne was saying, breaking open a fluffy jelly doughnut. "Everyone has brought cakes and pies and flowers. I think they want us. I mean they want dad and mother—and you. And did you see the telegram Mrs. Allen sent? She just heard that dad had resigned, and she told him the Ladies' Aid society wouldn't pay another cent toward the minister's salary unless he was the minister."

"She's true blue. And so are lots of others. But maybe the gifts are donations of pity."

"Oh, Sarah Anne, cheer up! This will be funny some day. Oh, I know I sound calloused. I guess I'm like mercury. Up and down and everywhere. But it will be!" Her voice grew gentler. "Sarah Anne, please, don't make any more jumps."

In that moment, in the compact little Coffee Pot, with no one around but a boy who had waited on them, Sarah Anne came nearer to confiding in her sister than she ever had. She almost said: "But Bob Kennedy will say I'm a coward." She didn't. She changed her words.

"Wouldn't it be bad to give up?" "It would be a whole lot braver than breaking your neck. And, oh, I'm glad your hair is back on your neck, the low way. It suits you. Bob—your Bob—likes it better that way, too. He told me."

Your Bob—he likes it better that way, too. . . . The words didn't mean anything but she put them away to keep.

Berryville was strangely quiet when they returned. The case was ended, the narcotic ring had been rounded up and sentences imposed, and the story was done. The minister waited nervously for Sunday. He would know on that day what had been done about his resignation. He was glad that there were funerals and meetings to take him away from the town most of the week.

Mrs. Melton was quiet but cheerful. "I've always wanted a house with a vegetable garden as well as a flower garden," she said. "Maybe, if we move, we'll find it."

Every day Sarah Anne made a jump or two. She no longer knew fear. She held to a vivid certainty that her chute would open. She leaned against that hope as one sways back to rest on a strong wind. Jack took her up the first time she made a real jump, and helped her. He insisted on two parachutes.

"You never know," he said. "What if you didn't? You never knew about life on the ground, either. You could move through your pattern, cheerful and happy, only to have the wheel roll backward and everything go off in a mad cyclorama. At least, the air was free. You had an immensity of space up there. And the air was kind, for it caught you and held you back when the earth came to meet you too quickly."

No, she was not afraid now. Jack taught her to kick herself out of the plane.

"Never stand on the wings," he said. "It's synthetic courage, grandstand psychology. Go out head first, feet after, on your back. Then you won't turn a somersault. And keep one hand on your parachute cord."

She knew that she should count ten slowly, then pull that rip cord, but Jack told her that if she had cleared the ship she might do it sooner. She learned about the 42 shroud cords which would help her land the chute so she wouldn't be dragged.

And all of the time she wished that Robert Kennedy, who had gone away, would come back and watch her. She did not deceive herself. She had done this to show him she could be courageous, too.

Once she spoke of him and the ship he intended to take up to the stratosphere.

"I think the whole thing is called off for another year," Jack said. "Flying is important to Bob, but not his bread and butter." He mentioned the name of a famous firm in Wall Street. "His father heads it and he's been hoping Bob would join."

The name was synonymous with wealth, breeding, power. So Bob had all of these! It hadn't been an accident that he had been able to put up that ball. Nor had it been such an accident that a glamor girl from the social register had smiled kindly on his handsome, long strength. Her cheeks burned. She, the daughter of a small-town minister, had dared to think she was important to him for a little while. He must be laughing at her. Not to others. He would not do that, but inwardly.

She threw her head high. Her eyebrows swept upward. So did her mouth, and her curls. She had a winging look about her.

"How do I apply for a chance to try the stratosphere jump?" she asked coolly.

TO EARL W. LUTZ

SIR: Patrons of the Citizens Telephone Co. lose a good friend in your retirement from the utility organization which you have served for so many years. It was about 37 years ago that you took over active management of the telephone company and at that time you found it with about 400 customers. Today that organization has grown to exceed 3,000 users. This, alone, is a tribute to your splendid management and to the efficiency of the company you represented. I hope that you are able to enjoy many, many years of leisure that you so much deserve. The community offers a glad hand, too, to your successor.

RESIDENTS: Announcement of the service department that the city's sidewalk and curb project under W. P. A. will be reopened next Monday should please many Circleville folk. This project, operated extensively in past years, provides an opportunity to property owners to obtain the improvements at a low cost. Material costs are charged to property owners with labor provided by W. P. A. Many sections of Circleville streets have been improved under the program. There are still many uneven brick sidewalks in the city that should be improved. These improvements provide employment for relief labor.

A civic organization can do no greater service than to give underprivileged children of the community proper training for citizenship. By having pastors select the boys it is certain they will be the type that will greatly benefit from a week's program of training in citizenship and recreation. Funds for the camp were obtained from the Police and Firemen's ball, sponsored by the club. These funds could not be put to a better use than for a youth camp. If this year's camp is successful, it should be made an annual affair.

World At A Glance

THE CONGRESSIONAL fight over the president's right to devalue the dollar was like a tremendously exciting story.

In our last installment we had the issue in conference between the senate and the house of representatives. The representatives already had voted to let the White House go on devaluing. It looked then as if the senators would vote the same way. The pro-devaluation group was in a majority. But quite a handful of these "pros" were desperately anxious to have the treasury pay a higher price for the silver which their states produce. The silverites' trouble was that they were in a minority on their paramount issue, just as the anti-devaluationists were in a minority on theirs. The anti-devaluationists generally opposed higher silver prices, too.

However, the anti-devaluationists were far more interested in curbing the president out of his devaluation power than they were in keeping the price of silver down. And the silverites were far more interested in boosting the price of silver than they were in continuing the presidential devaluation authority.

So the anti-devaluationists swallowed silver, in return for which the silverites gulped down anti-devaluation.

In that way the combination got an anti-devaluation-pro-silver majority.

Thus the administration (which wanted devaluation but didn't want inflated silver) was licked.

SENATORS VERSUS REPRESENTATIVES

That is to say, the administration was licked so far as the senate was concerned; the other chamber still was on the administrative side—both as to silver and devaluation.

Well, when the two houses disagree like this their system is to appoint a joint conference committee, to seek a compromise.

If a compromise proves to be impossible, that piece of proposed legislation falls. In this instance a disagreement meant that the silverites wouldn't get any higher prices and devaluation would go by the board also, by limitation—a victory for the anti-devaluationists, but a defeat for the silverites.

The conference committee got busy.

It was slightly (but only slightly) dominated by New Dealers—in other words administrationists.

The conference majority members said, among themselves: "We care more for devaluation's continuation than we do to keep the silver price down." Accordingly, they cooked up a report providing for continued devaluation and for a somewhat hiked silver price—not at much of a hike as the silverites had asked for, but enough, it was hoped, to bust up the anti-devaluation-silver partnership.

It was 100 percentedly indorsed, but it was a majority report. As such it went in. It was a foregone conclusion that the representatives would o. k. it.

It wasn't so sure as to the senate.

In the senate the question was: Would the silverites, getting part of what they demanded, be bought off from their compact with the anti-devaluationists? Most of the guessing, at the time, was affirmative.

ment. There will be athletic contests, swimming events and free swimming and roller skating for Scouts. Parents and friends of Scouts should show their interest in the Scout program of the district by attending the picnic with the youngsters. A district picnic should be an annual undertaking.

CIRCUITEER.

TO CIVIC CLUBS, INDIVIDUALS

ALL: Circleville has a project under way now that means much to the youngsters of the community. It is the playground undertaking that is being fostered by the Elks lodge in conjunction with several of the civic organizations. A financial campaign has been started; many of the city's outstanding citizens are giving their time and bending all efforts to make the campaign for $10,000 a success. Why can't you join in the drive by making a substantial contribution? It has been a civic shame for many, many years that Circleville has been without a playground of any sort. More and more, responsible residents of the city have grown to understand that they owe a debt to youngsters. Now, the opportunity is provided to purchase the necessary land and assure its use as a playground. There are many persons in Circleville financially able to contribute sizeable checks to the fund; there are many others who are better fitted to give a quarter, a half dollar or a dollar. Regardless of the size of the contribution, it will be appreciated, and it will go a long way toward providing Circleville's children with a place to play.

CIRCUITEER.

TO PROPERTY OWNERS

FRIENDS: Did you notice the warning issued this week by the Chamber of Commerce and Retail Merchants association concerning the operations of some high pressure salesmen? That warning was issued by the businessmen for YOUR protection. These salesmen, representing out-of-town interests, are soliciting property owners for re-siding and re-roofing contracts at $40 to $45 per square. Circleville contractors and dealers declare that they supply similar quality material and labor at $25 to $30 per square. Confer with your local contractor for your home improvements. Circleville contractors and builders' supply dealers have built their businesses on fair dealing with the public with quality merchandise. Home owners know they will receive full value in materials and labor from Circleville firms. Buy at home.

CIRCUITEER.

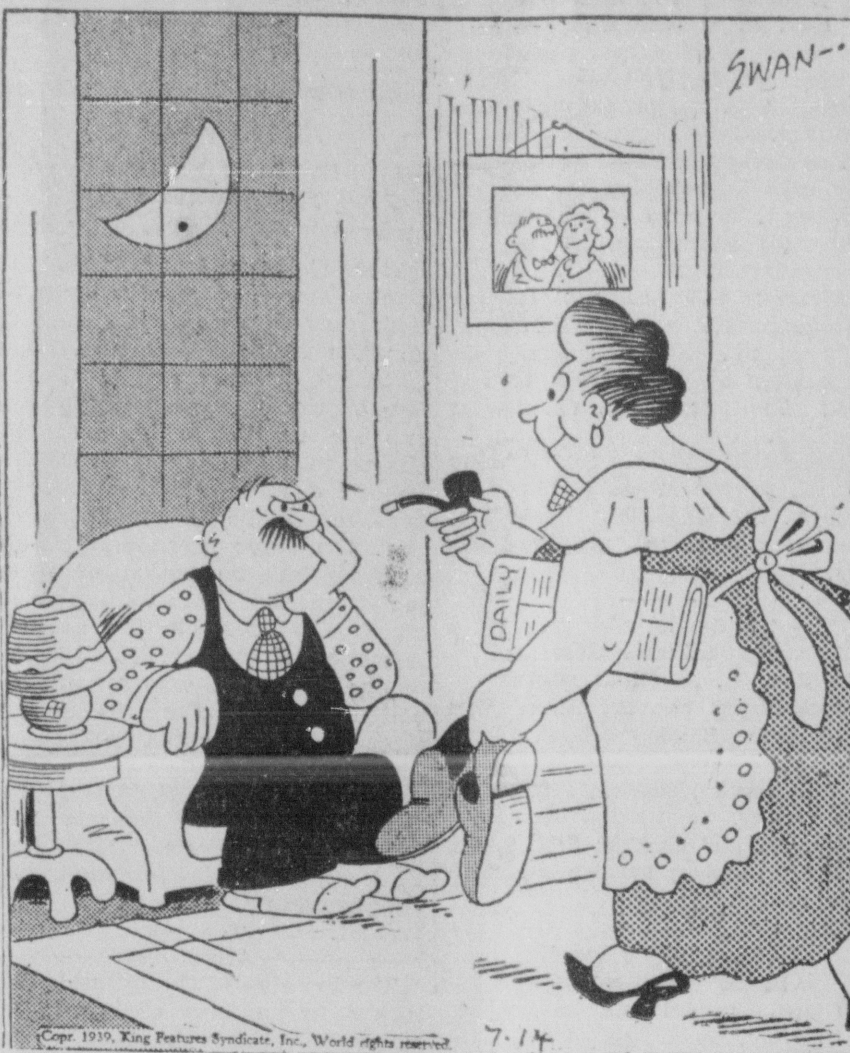

TO PUBLIC LIBRARY

EMPLOYEES: Public library workers should be proud of the records established so far this year on the circulation of books for boys and girls. All indications are that a new record will be established in 1939 for juvenile reading. It is interesting to note the tremendous gains made since the book truck has been placed in operation. In 1937 boys and girls read 9,523 library books. In 1938, with the book truck in operation, the circulation figure was boosted to 63,854. This year promises a new record with 34,073 books circulated in the first five months of the year. More children of Circleville and Pickaway county are taking advantage of the opportunities offered them to obtain books.

DIET AND HEALTH

Good Health May Depend On Feet

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

GOOD HEALTH is as much dependent on good feet as on any other two things in the body. "Feeble feet make feeble folk" is a slogan that has been suggested for adoption by some philanthropic society.

We have said that summer is a good time to cultivate health and that we should cultivate the foundations—our bones and joints—by improving posture. Much bad posture is due to weak feet and certainly we can consider the feet to be foundation structures.

"Flat foot" used to be blamed for much of the agony of painful feet. "Weak foot" is a much better term, because it puts the emphasis on function instead of structure. A foot may be very flat—that is, the arch

Dr. Clendinging will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

may sag very low—but if the muscles are strong enough to make it function properly, no trouble results. A perfectly flat foot may give no discomfort, whereas a high-arched, race-horse type of foot may cause agony because the muscles are on a strain.

Many Symptoms
The symptoms that flat foot causes are many—pain in the feet is one of the last to appear. Pain in the muscles of the calf, which are on a strain, is common. And this soon is transferred to pain in the back, because the strain is carried upward.

Weak foot will cause a gradual change in a person's habits. You used to walk or run, now you stand. You stood, now you sit. This causes you to gain weight, and this adds to the foot's burden so that a vicious circle is created. The fatter you get, the more strain is placed on the foot. The more strain there is on the foot, the less you exercise. The less you exercise, the fatter you get. Round and round.

It is long standing still, not walking, that breaks the foot down fastest. Callouses may be the first sign of improper use of the feet. The use of arch supporters, or shoes recommended by shoe clerks, may give relief for a time, but only a short time, because they do not strengthen the muscles. And it is strain on the muscles that causes the pain.

I am glad to see that orthopedic surgeons are becoming less radical in their recommendations about shoes. Dr. Dudley Morton, of Columbia, does not think that faulty footwear explains the majority of painful or weak feet. And Dr. Armitage Whitman, very sensibly it seems to me, in his book, From Head to Foot, calls attention to the danger in an abrupt change from high heels to flat heels.

"Low heels," he quotes one of those overheard conversations that all doctors should listen to, "my dear, I tried them once and I give you my word I never suffered as I did in the two weeks I wore those shoes."

Foot trouble may be classified as:

1. Irritation. Callouses and corns, which must be cleared up before a good foot is possible. Here proper shoes are important preventives.

"Oh, Sarah Anne, cheer up! This will be funny some day. Oh, I know I sound calloused. I guess I'm like mercury. Up and down and everywhere. But it will be!" Her voice grew gentler. "Sarah Anne, please don't make any more jumps."

In that moment, in the compact little Coffee Pot, with no one around but a boy who had waited on them, Sarah Anne came nearer to confiding in her sister than she ever had. She almost said: "But Bob Kennedy will say I'm a coward." She didn't. She changed her words.

"Wouldn't it be bad to give up?" "It would be a whole lot braver than breaking your neck. And, oh, I'm glad your hair is back on your neck, the low way. It suits you. Bob—your Bob—likes it better that way, too. He told me."

Your Bob—he likes it better that way, too. . . . The words didn't mean anything but she put them away for keep.

Berryville was strangely quiet when they returned. The case was ended, the narcotic ring had been rounded up and sentences imposed, and the story was done. The minister waited nervously for Sunday. He would know on that day what had been done about his resignation. He was glad that there were funerals and meetings to take him away from the town most of the week.

Mrs. Melton was quiet but cheerful. "I've always wanted a house with a vegetable garden as well as a flower garden," she said. "Maybe, if we move, we'll find it."

Every day Sarah Anne made a jump or two. She no longer knew fear. She held to a vivid certainty that her chute would open. She leaned against that hope as one sways back to rest on a strong wind. Jack took her up the first time she made a real jump, and helped her. He insisted on two parachutes.

"You never know," he said.

"What if you didn't? You never knew about life on the ground, either. You could move through your pattern, cheerful and happy, only to have the wheel roll backward and everything go off in a mad cyclorama. At least, the air was free. You had an immensity of space up there. And the air was kind, for it caught you and held you back when the earth came to meet you too quickly."

No, she was not afraid now.

Jack taught her to kick herself out of the plane.

"Never stand on the wings," he said. "It's synthetic courage, grandstand playing. Go out head first, feet after, on your back. Then you won't turn a somersault. And keep one hand on your parachute cord."

She knew that she should count ten slowly, then pull that rip cord, but Jack told her that if she had cleared the ship she might do it sooner. She learned about the 42 shroud cords which would help her land the chute so she wouldn't be dragged.

And all of the time she wished that Robert Kennedy, who had gone away, would come back and watch her. She did not deceive herself. She had done this to show him she could be courageous, too. Once she spoke of him and the ship he intended to take up to the stratosphere.

"I think the whole thing is called off for another year," Jack said. "Flying is important to Bob, but not his bread and butter." He mentioned the name of a famous firm in Wall Street. "His father heads it and he's been hoping Bob would join."

The name was synonymous with wealth, breeding, power. So Bob had all of these! It hadn't been an accident that he had been able to put up that ball. Nor had it been such an accident that a glamor girl from the social register had smiled kindly on his handsome, long strength. Her cheeks burned. She, the daughter of a small-town minister, had dared to think she was important to him for a little while. He must be laughing at her. Not to others. He would not do that, but inwardly.

She threw her head high. Her eyebrows swept upward. So did her mouth, and her curls. She had a winning look about her.

"How do I apply for a chance to try the stratosphere jump?" she asked coolly.

DOUBLE WALLS TO KEEP WATER HOT

"One of the Speed Queen's big features is the Double Wall Construction around the tub. These double walls insulate the tub and keep the water piping hot. When I am through washing, the water is still just about as hot as when I started. My previous washer had a single wall tub and whenever I'd have a big wash, I'd have to add hot water. But not with this double wall Speed Queen. The last batch of clothes comes out just as clean as the first—and by CLEAN I mean SNOW-WHITE."

HOT WATER CLEANS QUICKER

Half the secret of fast, clean washing is hot water and good suds. It's easy enough to get good suds. And it's easy enough to get hot water. But to keep that water hot while you're washing requires a tub that holds the heat—and that's what the Speed Queen does.

WALLACE-GLITT YANKEES DROP TEAM WINS, 5-1 SIXTH IN ROW; RED SOX WIN

Four Markers In Top of Fifth Decide Game In Softball Loop

Wallace-Glitt softballers boosted their first place lead in the city league Thursday evening with a 5-1 victory over the scrapping Purina Feeds. Four runs in the top half of the fifth game spelled victory for the Wallace-Glitt boys after the game was deadlocked 1-1 until that time.

The big inning was featured by two singles, two walks, two errors and a double, the latter by Ansel Roof doing much to upset the applecart of the Purina lads.

Leasure, winning pitcher, gave up only four safeties, Hegele, for the Purinas, giving up six. Leasure fanned five and walked one while Hegele whiffed one and walked two, both coming in the fatal inning.

The Monarch A. C. and Frisinger Contractors tangle tonight.

WALLACE-GLITT TEAM WINS, 5-1

Four Markers In Top Of

Fifth Decide Game In

Softball Loop

Wallace-Glitt softballers boosted their first place lead in the city league Thursday evening with a 5-1 victory over the scrapping Purina Feeds. Four runs in the top half of the fifth frame spelled victory for the Wallace-Glitt boys after the game was deadlocked 1-1 until that time.

The big inning was featured by two singles, two walks, two errors and a double, the latter by Ansel Roof doing much to upset the apocryphal of the Purina lads.

Leasure, winning pitcher, gave up only four safeties, Hegele, for the Purins, giving up six. Leasure fanned five and walked one while Hegele whiffed one and walked two, both coming in the fatal inning.

The Monarch A. C. and Frisinger Contractors tangle tonight.

Cat Starving For Dead Master

TOM, the 17-year-old Persian cat, apparently decided life wasn't worth living after his master died at Shreveport, La., and spurned food to the point of starvation. Cat experts predicted nothing could be done and that the animal would gradually starve to death. Tom quit eating July 4, when his owner, Sergt. W. R. Blakesley of Barksdale Field, died from an accidental pistol wound.

NEW FARMALL TRACTOR TO BE SHOWN TUESDAY

Herschel Hill, of the Hill Implement Co., attended a preview of the new Farmall-A tractor held Thursday in Columbus.

"This latest rubber-tired addition to the Farmall line," Mr. Hill said, "which sells for a new low Farmall price, brings the grower of row crops something he has never had before; full vision of the work that is being done directly under the tractor."

"It's all in the design of the tractor. The engine is cleverly placed so it does not obstruct the view of the rows. The driver rides easily in a comfortable sponge rubber upholstered seat and watches the cultivator shovels at the same close range that is possible on a horse-drawn riding cultivator."

The tractor will be on display next Tuesday afternoon at the Hill Implement Co., E. Franklin street.

LUTHER LEAGUE WINS CONTEST AT LIST HOUSE

The Luther League was winner of a ball game Thursday night with the Lutheran Brotherhood, a feature of the Brotherhood meeting held at the country home of Luther List, Pickaway township.

The lunch, served under the supervision of Mr. List, consisted of ham sandwiches, deviled eggs, ice cream and iced tea. Adam Goldhart, who observed his 79th birthday anniversary, stood while the group sang a happy birthday song.

The program, under the direction of Ned Dresbach, president of the League, consisted of a series of contests. They included bouncing a ball into a box, passing balloons, spelling words with lettered cards, wadding newspaper sheets with one hand, and other similar events. The League won these contests by a score of five to three. The program closed with a kitchen band, Hilaire Haecker played the organ. Mr. Haecker was voted into the membership of the brotherhood.

The Brotherhood extended a hearty vote of thanks to the League for providing the program and to the hosts.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Harry Barthelmas, south of Williamsport. It will be a corn roast followed by a program of tall stories.

A Hungarian lass, Lusa Gensa, was willed a castle and $1,000,000 by a rich uncle on condition that she would sell flowers in the streets of Budapest for a year after his death, so she would "understand the lives of workers."
